If you use Firefox, click "OK" (3) in the window that appear and the reference will be sent to your library. NB! Choose «Open with» (5) if this is not the default setting.

If you use Google Chrome, choose "Open" or "Always open..." (4) as the next step for the saved file located on the bottom left side of the screen (Norwegian menu in the figure).

If you use Internet Explorer, choose "Open" (5) (Norwegian menu in the figure).

If you use Safari on a Mac, the web browser will automatically save the import file in the download folder. Go to the download folder and find the file (.nbib) and drag the file onto the EndNote program icon in the bottom of the screen. Sometimes you will be asked to confirm which library the import should go to. icon in the bottom of the screen. The references will be imported directly to your library.

EndNote will now only list the imported references. We recommend that you check a couple of references to see that the import was correct. In our experience, imports from PubMed are usually correct.

Choose "Show all references" from the "References" menu to see all references in your library.
