Students will find the examination results in Studentweb. Please contact the department if you have questions about your results. The Examinations Office will not be able to answer this.
1. By using literature from the reading list, present the arguments about doing research with children as similar to or different from doing research with adults. Discuss briefly your own reflections concerning these arguments.

2. Woodhead and Faulkner (2000: 31) argue “that psychologists must acknowledge the status and power differentials which shape (or have the potential to distort) the processes involved in carrying out research with children”. Discuss this statement.
